DEVICE OF RICHARD PYNSON.

Preface.

THE first reference to the foundation of the City Public Library at Bristol appears in the minutes of the Council as follows:—

“Convocatio Domus Consilii vj die Decembris, 1613. It is this daye agreed that if Mr. Roberte Redwoode, will give his Lodge adjoyninge to the Towne Wall neere the Marsh of Bristol, to the Mayor and Commonalty to be converted to a Librayre, or place to put bookes for the furtherance of Learninge, then the same shal be thankfully accepted, and that then there shal be a dore made through the wall there on such sorte as shal be thought conveniente by the Surveyors of the landes of the Cytie, and Mr. John Hopkins, Aldn. Mr. Robert Aldworth, late Mayor, and Hierome Ham, Towne Clerke, to passe from thence into the Marsh then, and that such bookes as shal be given to the Cytie by the reverende father in God the Lord Archbishop of Yorke, or any other well disposed pson for the furnishinge of a Librayre, shal be thankfully accepted and preserved in the place aforesayed.”

The city Annals for the year 1614 record also the fact that “this year was erected and builded the Library in the Marsh, Doctor Toby Mathews and Robert Redwood ‘was’ the founders thereof and Richard Williams, Vicar of St. Leonard’s was the first master or keeper thereof.” The precise extent of the share that Archbishop Mathew then had in the foundation of the library is not recorded, and the time has long passed when it would be possible to verify the history of every volume in the collection, or the actual date of its accession. It is however, safe to conclude, that the Books and MSS. now catalogued, were mostly given by Dr. Tobias Mathew, Archbishop of York, between 1613 and 1628, with the expressed condition that they were "for the benefit of his native city, by the dissemination of knowledge, and for the purpose of founding a library of sound divinity, and other learning, for the use of the Aldermen and Shop-keepers."* All books in the library printed up to the year 1628 are therefore included.

The catalogue has been delayed for some months, as Dr. Cuthbert Atchley, who most kindly undertook the description of the MSS., was unable to give much time consecutively to that section of

* Tobias Mathew was descended from the ancient family of the Mathew's in Wales, and was born on Bristol Bridge in 1546, which at that period was covered with shops and dwelling-houses. He received his early education at Wells, and matriculated at Oxford as a probationer of University College in 1559. He graduated B.A. in 1563, and proceeded M.A. in 1566, in which year he was ordained. When Queen Elizabeth visited the university in the same year, he took part in a "disputation in philosophy" before her in St. Mary's Church, and on her departure he bade her farewell in an eloquent oration. At this time "he was much respected for his great learning, eloquence, sweet conversation, friendly disposition, and the sharpness of his wit." In 1569 he was elected public orator of the university, and later appointed a Canon of Christ Church. In 1572 he was appointed Archdeacon of Bath, and subsequently Prebendary of Teynton Regis in the Cathedral of Salisbury, and "being much famed for his admirable way of preaching, he was made one of the Queen's Chaplains in ordinary." About the year 1576 he was appointed Dean of Christ Church, having previously taken the degrees of B.D. and D.D. In 1583 he was installed as Dean of Durham, when he resigned the Deanery of Christ Church. While Dean of Durham Dr. Mathew "acted as a political agent of the government in the north, and was a vigorous pursuer of recusants"; and through him the Queen's advisers frequently received information on the condition of Scotland. He was none the less active as an orator, and his services as preacher were eagerly sought all over the county palatine. "Yet for all his pains in preaching he neglected not his proper episcopal acts of visitation, confirmation, and ordination, he confirmed sometimes five hundred, sometimes a thousand at a time; yea, so many, that he hath been forced to betake the work. The probable dates and styles of ornamentation of the MSS. have been determined by the authorities of the MS. department of the British Museum, from photographs sent to them. In describing the Printed Books I have endeavoured to give the titles, with the contractions of the early printers as exactly as possible. As a basis of the work, the catalogue of the British Museum has been followed,* and every authority available has been consulted. The references to Hain (to which important work I was unable to obtain access) were kindly inserted by Mr. Gordon Duff, to whom my grateful thanks are due for reading the proof sheets of the incunabula, and aiding me with many valuable suggestions. In the arrangement of the entries a chronological order has been followed throughout, whilst the principle of giving too much, rather than too little description, has been observed both in regard to the MSS. and the Printed Books. This will account for much that to the specialist might be deemed superfluous.

himself to his bed for refreshment." In 1595 he was promoted to the Bishopric of Durham. His services were recognised by James I. no less than by his predecessor; he took a prominent part in the Hampton Court Conference, and preached at the close before the King, who greatly admired his sermons. In 1606 he was appointed Archbishop of York on the death of Dr. Matthew Hutton, whom he had succeeded also at Durham. He died in 1628, and was buried in York Minster, where his tomb stands on the south side of the presbytery.

Though renowned in his day as a preacher and divine, Archbishop Mathew was a statesman quite as much as a prelate. The advisers of Elizabeth and James felt that they could rely upon him to watch and guard the northern shires. None the less was he a diligent bishop and pious man. "He had an admirable talent for preaching, which he never suffered to lie idle, but used to go from one town to another to preach to crowded audiences. He kept an exact account of the sermons which he preached after he was preferred; by which it appears that he preached when Dean of Durham, 721; when bishop of that diocese, 550; when Archbishop of York, 721; in all 1992."

* Where I have been unable to find a work mentioned in the British Museum Catalogue, an asterisk is prefixed to the entry.

It is necessary to point out that many of the works now catalogued, were previously mentioned in a list of "Books in the City Library," which formed part of the appendix of Mr. Tovey's well-known work, the "History of the Bristol City Library: its Founders and Benefactors," published in 1853. Subsequent cataloguers of the library, appear to have copied the entries from this informal list, without verification of the books themselves; with the result, that very many works have been imperfectly recorded, or omitted altogether.

As examples the following were formerly supposed to be wanting the first volume in every instance:—the works of Charlier de Gerson (Strasburg, 1494); the Latin Bible of Hugo de Sancto Chara (Basle, 1503); Conciliorum Omnium (Cologne, 1567); and the works of S. Chrysostom (Basle, 1530), the first volume being mentioned separately as a distinct work. Similar errors were in many instances perpetuated in regard to the second volume of works, from the fact, apparently, of its having been bound up with the first volume. For example:—La Mer des Histoires (Lyons, 1506); works by Otto I. (Strasburg, 1515); Bartolus de Saxoferrato (Lyons, 1527); S. Gregory (Paris, 1542); Paolo Giovio (Paris, 1553-4), amongst others. A work by *Duns Scotus (Venice, 1506), in five volumes (complete), was imperfectly described as if wanting the third and fifth volumes; and the fifth volume of a work by Nicolaus de Tudeschis (Basle, 1488), bound up with the fourth volume, was thought to be wanting. Many complete works have also been found bound up with others of the same size, the first work only being noticed. As examples:—the Theologia Naturalis of Raymonde Sebunde (Strasburg, 1496) and Fasciculus Temporum, 1484, were both discovered with the Promptorium Parvulorum (Pynson, 1499). Vallensis Elegantie de Lingua Latina (Venice, 1496), was bound up with a work of Cicero; and the De Orbe Novo Decades by Peter Martyr (Alcala, 1516), had been lost sight of amongst three earlier works in the same binding. The following works were not previously recorded, some being found in the basement of the Central Library, King Street, and in the lumber rooms of the Hotwells and the North District Libraries:—a medical work by Joannes Mcsue (De Medicinis Universalibus), printed at Venice in 1479; S. Augustine's De Civitate Dei, printed at Basle in 1479; works by Sallust (Venice, 1486); Ægidius (Venice, 1500); Polybius (Paris, 1512); Liutprandus (Paris, 1514); Annius (Paris, 1515); Pope Boniface VIII. (Paris, 1524); Ptolemy (Basle, 1545); Vergil (London, 1546); Suctonius (Venice, 1554); Lossius (Frankfort, 1559-62); Thomas à Kempis (? 1568); Baron (Day, London, 1579); Ovid (Leyden, 1590); with many others.

Altogether the discoveries made whilst re-cataloguing this portion of the library amounted to 160 volumes. One of the most important was the fourth volume of the Complutensian Polyglot Bible, which was thought to be wanting. In a paper read by Mr. John Taylor, at the Congress of the Library Association of Great Britain, at Plymouth, in 1885, and subsequently published in pamphlet form, entitled: “The Earliest Free Libraries of England," it is stated on page 37 that "the Bristol copy unfortunately wants the fourth volume, which was stolen while the books were in charge of the Library Society."* Now, whatever may be said to-day of the policy of that private society, in appropriating for a long period, the entire building and books of the City Library, which rightfully belonged to the citizens, it is a relief to find beyond doubt, that no blame can be attached to its memory in this instance, as the volume in question was never lost.

In conclusion I have gratefully to acknowledge the kindness of the Right Hon. the Earl of Crawford, President of the Library Association, 1898-9, in permitting me to lay before him the first proof copy of the incunabula portion of the catalogue. My thanks are due also to E. Gordon Duff, Esq.; Dr. Richard Garnett; Robert Proctor, Esq.; Frank Pacy, Esq.; and especially to Dr. Cuthbert Atchley.

As we read of the wholesale destruction of libraries in the past, and wonder at the popular rage which at times exhausted itself on illuminated books and MSS., it is surely a matter for congratulation

* This society was originally founded in 1772, as a subscription library, the Bristol Corporation permitting its members the use of the building until the year 1855. In this way the library was for a long time alienated to the use of a private society, and everything was done "that would exclude the poor student and the humble citizen from its use, and render it a public library to those only who could afford to pay for its accommodation." (Tovey's History of the Bristol City Library, p. 22.)

"So entirely did the society consider themselves owners of the property, that in 1826 they requested the Corporation to permit them 'to remove the city books from the city shelves, in order to make room for books belonging to the society'; but, although the citizens had been practically excluded for many years from their own property, the Common Council was offended at the impudence of the demand, and the application was 'laid on the table.'" (Latimer's Annals of Bristol in the Nineteenth Century, Bristol, 1887, p. 334.)

that one of the earliest of municipal public libraries, with a collection possessing such peculiar interest and value should have been preserved to the City.

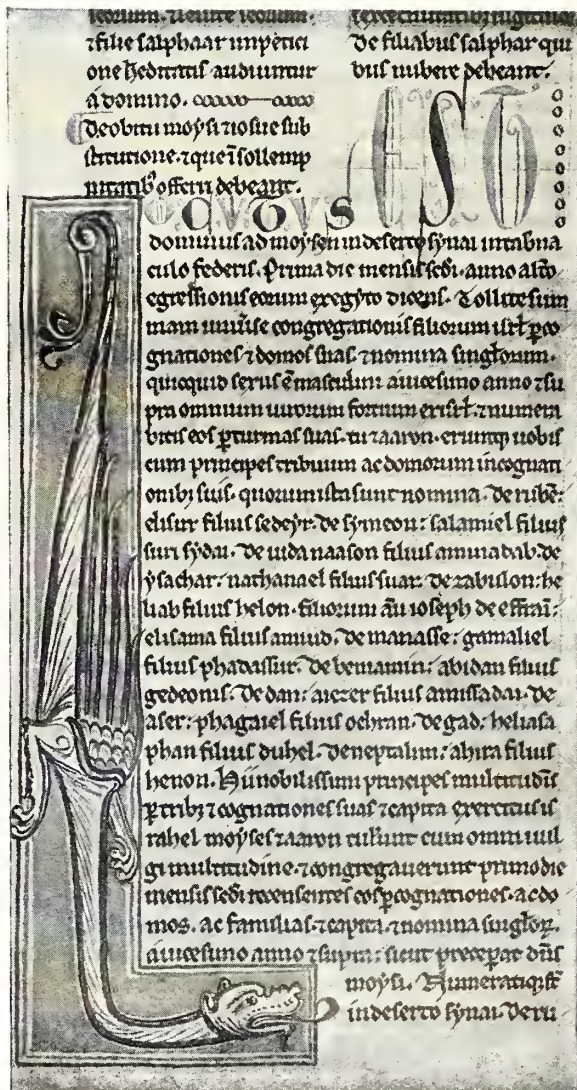

I therefore, with much respect, dedicate this work to the Chairman, Mr. Alderman Fox, and Members of the Libraries Committee of the Corporation of Bristol.

“Monopolies, copyrights, patents, and all other special concessions from the government on the subject of books and of printing, are known under the generic name of privileges. From the year 1469 down to the year 1517 these privileges were usually granted by the College, or Cabinet of Venice. . . . the executors of Hermann Liechtenstein, when applying in 1494 for a copyright in Vincent de Beauvais’ Speculum, themselves insert the proviso in their petition, non derogando tamen ob hoc iuribus eorum qui ante presentem diem imprissent aut imprimi facere cepissent.”—H. F. Brown, The Venetian Printing Press, London, 1891; pp. 51 and 57.

Part of the original binding is preserved.

Contains 190 leaves. Sig. a—3, A—H in sixes, excepting a and H in eights, the last leaf is blank.

“The present volume is interesting, chiefly as presenting us with a specimen of the Roman type of Koberger, and as a testimony of the existence of himself and of his press, as late as the year 1497. It may be summarily described:—

On the recto of fol. 1, ‘Tulius De Oratore cum Commento et alia opera.’ The oration of Omnibonus Leonicens De Laudibus Eloquentiae—on three pages. The text begins on 3 rect: surrounded by the commentary of Omnibonus. On the recto of fol. CXXXVIII., ‘De Oratore’ ends, and ‘De Perfecto Oratore’ begins—Then at fol. CXLVII. rev. begins ‘Liber Topicorum’—On fol. CLI. ‘Liber Partitionum’—On fol. CLVI. rect: ‘De Claris Oratoribus’—On fol. CLXIX. rev. ‘De Petitione Consulatus’—The Orations of Æschines and Demosthenes ‘contra Ctesiphontem’ close the volume at fol. CLXXXIX, erroneously numbered CLXXXV. rev. The colophon:

Uniuersi operis ab Antonio koberger impraessi Auno a Natiuitate domini Millesimo quadringentesimo nonagesimoseptimo finis. Die. XXVI. Marcii.”—Bibliotheca Spenceriana Vol. I., p. 338.

The most famous, as he was one of the earliest, if not actually the first printers of Nuremberg or Nürnberg, Anthony Koberger, does not appear to have used a mark.—Printers’ Marks, p. 167.

With this work is bound up another, dated 1496, which is now catalogued separately, (see the preceding entry—Valla). Part of the original binding is preserved. (Hain, 5111 (1)).*

Contains 115 leaves, without pagination. Printed in double columns, 41 lines to a full column. Sig. a—t in sixes, excepting a and b in eights and t in three.

Frederick Egmond, an important and wealthy foreign bookseller, was in 1499 in partnership with a man whose name, given in a Latin form, was Peter post Pascham. It seems to have been a common custom with printers and booksellers to Latinize their names when they issued Latin books . . . and this habit has been a fruitful source of confusion to bibliographers. . . . In the case of Peter post Pascham, all ingenuity seems unavailing, and no reasonable guess has yet been made at his real name.—Vide Frederick Egmond, by E. Gordon Duff. "The Library," vol. II., pp. 210-16.

Contains MS. notes. On plates I. and II. will be found illustrations of the binding, and the device of Pynson. With this work are bound up, in the original binding, two others of the 15th century, which are now catalogued separately, (see Sabunde, p. 8; and Fasciculus tēpor, p. 3). (Hain, 13399).

Fol.*

The titlepage of each volume commences with the following :—

“Hæc tibi pentadecas tetragonon respicit illud
Hospitium petri ⁊ pauli ter quinq̄ dierum.
Namq̄ instrumētum vetus hebdoas innuit : octo
Lex noua signatur. ter quinq̄ receptat vtrinq̄.”

Under these lines are the arms of Cardinal Ximenez, and then the special title of the volume. The titlepage of the fifth volume differs slightly from the others, the Cardinal's hat in the centre being printed in black instead of red. In the first line of Leo X.'s letter in Vol. I. occurs the misprint—Dilfcte.

The New Testament portion was printed in 1514, and the Old Testament in 1517; but though printed at these dates, the sanction of Pope Leo X. (see Vol. I.) was not obtained till 1520, and the work was probably not in circulation until the year 1522. Dibdin states that the entire cost of the work which amounted in English money to between £11,000 and £12,000, was defrayed by the Cardinal. In order to become better acquainted with the more learned parts of the Polyglot, Cardinal Ximenez undertook to make himself master of the Hebrew tongue, though he was upwards of sixty years of age. He employed a large number of learned men, and gave 4,000 crowns for seven MSS. of the Hebrew Bible. The interest of the work is not merely from its being a superb example of the early printing, but because it is the first Polyglot edition of the Bible, and the first printed edition of the New Testament in the original tongue.

The original binding has been carefully restored.

The titlepage is ornamented with a woodcut border.

"The first edition was no sooner published, than Erasmus saw all the errors of it; and, consequently, in his second of 1519, he has presented us with a purer text, and more valuable readings. Joseph Scaliger, who was never a very favourable critic towards the works of the learned, had the highest veneration for this second edition of Erasmus."—T. F. Dibdin, Introduction to the Greek and Latin Classics, London, 1827; Vol. I., p. 109.

"Frobenius became one of the most learned printers on record. . . . Erasmus tells Herwagen, in a letter written to the latter in 1531, that Frobenius benefits the public more than himself, and that he will leave his heirs more fame than money. For Froben spent enormous sums on the getting up of his impressions; even the titlepages were to excel in beauty of execution those of other printers; he employed Holbein, the painter, and Urs Graff, a then famous engraver, whom he paid liberally. The returns of his sales did not cover the cost of production."—The Printers of Basle, in the XV. and XVI. Centuries, pp. 87 and 90.

Contains MS. notes. The original binding is preserved.

Pius II., Pope. [Enea Silvio Piccolomini.] Commentariorum Aeneae Sylvii Piccolominei Senensis, de Concilio Basileæ celebrato libri duo . . . nunc . . . primum impressi . . . Cum multis aliis nunquam antehac impressis, etc. [Cologne? 1521?] Fol.

In officina Andreæ Cratandri: Basileæ, [with device], 1524.* Fol.

"Cratander, whose real patronymic was Hartmann, began printing at Basle in 1518. He was a man of great learning, and the friend of learned men. Ecolampadius for some time lived in his house as his guest. Like Froben, Cratander printed chiefly learned works and embellished them as much as possible with elaborate illustrations.

He printed up to the year 1536, when, at the instigation of his wife, who would no longer allow him to go on with the "dirty work," he sold his office and plant to the partnership concern, Winter, Oporinus, Platter, and Lasius. But he died soon after, and not in prosperous circumstances, viz., in 1540. . . . Cratander's device was the Goddess of Opportunity—according to the Romans a female, but according to the Greeks a male, deity."—The Printers of Basle in the XV. and XVI. Centuries, pp. 167-8.

Contains MS. notes.

Ptolemæus (Claudius) Claudii Ptolemaei Geographicae enarrationis libri octo Bilibaldo Pirckeymhero interprete. Annotationes Joannis de Regio Monte in errores commissos a Jacobo Angelo in translatione sua. Johannes Grieningerus: Argentoragi, 1525. Fol.

2 Esdras xiiij is divided in the MS. at v. 15 to make a fourteenth chapter, and followed without interval by 3 Esdras. The chapters of Esther are numbered III.=3 + 4; IIII.=5 + 6 + 7 + 8; V.=8 + 9 + 10 to verse 4; VI.=10 verse 4 to end; but there is a space of 12 cms between the end of cap. 15 and beginning of cap. 16. Job ends, fo. 139 verso, et lectatum est cor meum in abscondito. et xxxi. 27; fo. 140 commences strubutionis. Et habitare fecit in tabernacula eorum (Ps. lxxvij. 54). Proverbs ends, fo. 149 verso, qui se corripit. nec ad sapientes graditur (xv. 12); fo. 150 begins et profundum abyssi. quis (Ecclus. 1. 2). Daniel ends, fo. 208, in momento coram eo (xiv. 41). On fo. 268 verso against 1 Cor. x. (15-18), in a 17th century hand, is written sacramentum Eucharistiæ, and on the next folio against 1 Cor. xi. (23-27), Verba Christi de sanguine & corpore suo hæc sunt. The book of The Acts does not appear to have been contemplated by the scribe, as St. John's Gospel is immediately followed on the same page by the summary of Romans. These summaries are written in redoubled columns, four to the page.

There are no catchwords or signatures, and the book has been bound so tightly that one cannot see the strings.

This is known as the Corporation Bible, and was handed over to the Library in 1785. The city records contain the following:—

May 12th, 1785.—On the motion of Mr. Harford it is unanimously agreed and ordered that a Latin Manuscript Bible, now in the Chamberlains office, be forthwith sent to the Public Library in this city, and there deposited with the other books and manuscripts belonging to this corporation under the care of the Librarian.

2. MASSBOOK (Victorine Canons of Bristol).

Vellum, size 33.5 cms high x 23 cms across, ff. 153, in double columns of 35 lines each. Cent. XV. (circ. 1420).

In quires of 8 leaves, with catchwords: the quire fo. 73 sq. lacks its last leaf, and that succeeding its first 4 leaves; and the quire fo. 140 sq. lacks the last 5 leaves, and the next quire the first 5. The Kalendar, &c., and the Temporale is missing up to the midst of the Epistle for the third mass of Christmas Day; fo. 1 commencing "et odisti iniquitatem: propterea unxit": fo. 81 commences with "incipiens a moyse et omnibus", in the gospel for Easter-Monday; and fo. 143 "Sacrosancta hodie ¶ Sequeucia." the sequence for St. Andrew. The MS. ends on fo. 153 verso with "salutem. Communio. Per lignum serui" (facti sumus catchwords), the communion for the mass of the Finding of the Holy Cross.

Contents:

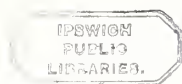

Temporale (Third Mass of Christmas Day, from midst of Epistle)	fo. 1
Ordo missae	fo. 73
Canon Missae	fo. 78
Sanctorale	fo. 143

There are no miniatures: there are two small illuminated capitals (gold letter on coloured ground) and eleven large ones (coloured letter on gold ground), all of characteristic English style.

The MS. shews close agreement with the Missal of the Abbey of St. Victor ad muros Parisienses, with which it has been collated. The sequences in the MS. are generally not the same as those at St. Victor. The Litany and the Sanctorale shew traces of the French derivation. The MS. is localised from the following facts: the rubrics mention the abbot; but it was not an abbey of monks, following St. Bennet's rule, for St. Maur and St. Scholastica have only memories; therefore it was an abbey of canons of the rule of St. Austin. In the Litany, St. Victor is the second martyr after the Holy Innocents; St. Austin's name the second and the sixth among the confessors, the archbishop of Canterbury and the bishop of Hippo, and each of the latter is invoked twice. This postulates an abbey of Austin Canons of the order of St. Victor of Paris, dedicated to St. Austin of Canterbury; and the presence in the Sanctorale and Litany of such names as St. Cadoc of Cowbridge, St. Milburg of Wenlock, St. Werburg of Chester, SS. Wlstan and Oswald of Worcester, and St. Oswald of Gloucester, together with the absence of east-country saints, is decisive in favour of Bristol to the exclusion of Grimsby.

The Feast of Relics is kept on the Third Sunday after Easter; and the Dedication mass has no variants for LXX., Lent, or Eastertide.

A fuller account of this MS. will appear in the forthcoming number of the Transactions of St. Paul's Ecclesiological Society.

3. A VOLUME OF MISCELLANEOUS TREATISES, given by Jocelyn, Bishop of Bath and Wells, to the Convent of the Greyfriars of Bristol. Cent. XIII (before 1242 A.D.).

Vellum, 30.5 cms high x 22 cms across, ff. 116, in double columns of 35 lines each

In quires of 10 leaves, except those commencing fo. 51 sq., fo. 59 sq. and fo. 107 sq., which have only 8; ff. 1, 2 and ff. 115, 116 form flyleaves in the beginning and end, and are of much thicker and coarser parchment than the rest of the book.

Contents:

"Liber beati ysidori Episcopi de summo bono"	fo. 3
"Prologus in librum beati ysidori: qui sinonima intitulantur"	fo. 52
"Synonima"	fo. 52 verso
"Liber soliloquorum ysidori episcopi"	fo. 58
Augustinus Episcopus Hypponensis contra Adimantium	fo. 67
Augustinus contra epistolam Parmenianum	fo. 85 verso
"Ex Dialogo contra Parmenianum, Augustinus"	fo. 112 verso

On fo. 1 (which has been cut away slightly at the top) is "cum senonima ysidori cum libro soliloquorum et Augustinus contra adimantium. De dono bone Memorie Domini Jocelini quondam Episcopi Bathoniensis et Wellensis. ff. 19 ysidorus.

"In hoc volumine continentur Isidorus de summo bono. Sinonima Isidori. Liber Soliloquorum Augustinus contra adimantium. Tres libri beati Augustini contra Parmeniani (sic).

"De Conuentu fratrum minorum Bristollie. de dono domini Jocelini quondam Episcopi Bathoniensis".

Jocelin was bishop of Bath and Wells from 1206 to 1242 (John le Neve & T. D. Hardy, Fasti Ecclesiæ Anglicanæ, Oxford, 1854; vol. i., p. 130). There are MS. marginal notes in various hands, and on fo. 2 a table of contents in a 17th century hand. Fo. 66, and ff. 114 to the end are blank on both sides.

4. PETER LOMBARD, Libri sententiarum quattuor.

Vellum, 25 cms high x 18 cms across, ff. 105, in double columns, 40 lines to a column. Circ. 1300 (?). French or Italian.

In quires of 8 leaves; except the first which has 4; ff. 37, 38, 39 form another, ff. 40, 41 another. Quires 8 to 13 inclusive are numbered at the foot of the verso of the last leaf xij-xvij (in same hand as text). There are no catchwords.

Contents :

Table of Capitula	fo. i
Prologue, and "primus liber sententiarum"	fo. 5
"Liber secundus"	fo. 38
Beginning of book iii is lost : earliest remaining is	fo. 43
"Liber quartus"	fo. 61

The initial capitals are in red, without ornamentation.

5. A VOLUME OF HOMILIES OR SERMONS, formerly belonging to Glastonbury Abbey, by Abp. Jac. de Voragine of Genoa (1230-1298).

Vellum, 30 cms high X 20 cms across, ff. 103, in double columns of 48 lines each. Circ. 1400 A.D.

In quires of 8 leaves, except those commencing fo. 89 and fo. 96 which have only 7, each having lost a leaf; and fo. 103 which is by itself.

Fo. 2 is headed "¶ liber monasterii beate marie glastonie," and on fo. 9 "liber glastonie."

This series of sermons is on the various gospels from Ash Wednesday to Easter Tuesday: except the first which is on Jeremiah vi. 26, and the second on Job vi. 19. The use closely follows that of Paris, but the gospel for Thursday after Invocavit is Si vos manseritis: and on "Feria tertia secunde ebdomade passionis domini," the first sermon is on Jeremiah xl. 19 (the lesson for the day) and the second on Good Friday is on Exodus xxv. 40.

On fo. 103 is an Inspeximus by Thomas, Archbishop of Canterbury, of a charter granted by William Courtenay his predecessor, settling a dispute between the rectors and vicars of the diocese on the one hand, and their parishioners on the other, concerning tithes and offerings. Dated at Lambeth, 25 July, 1408, the 12th year of his translation.

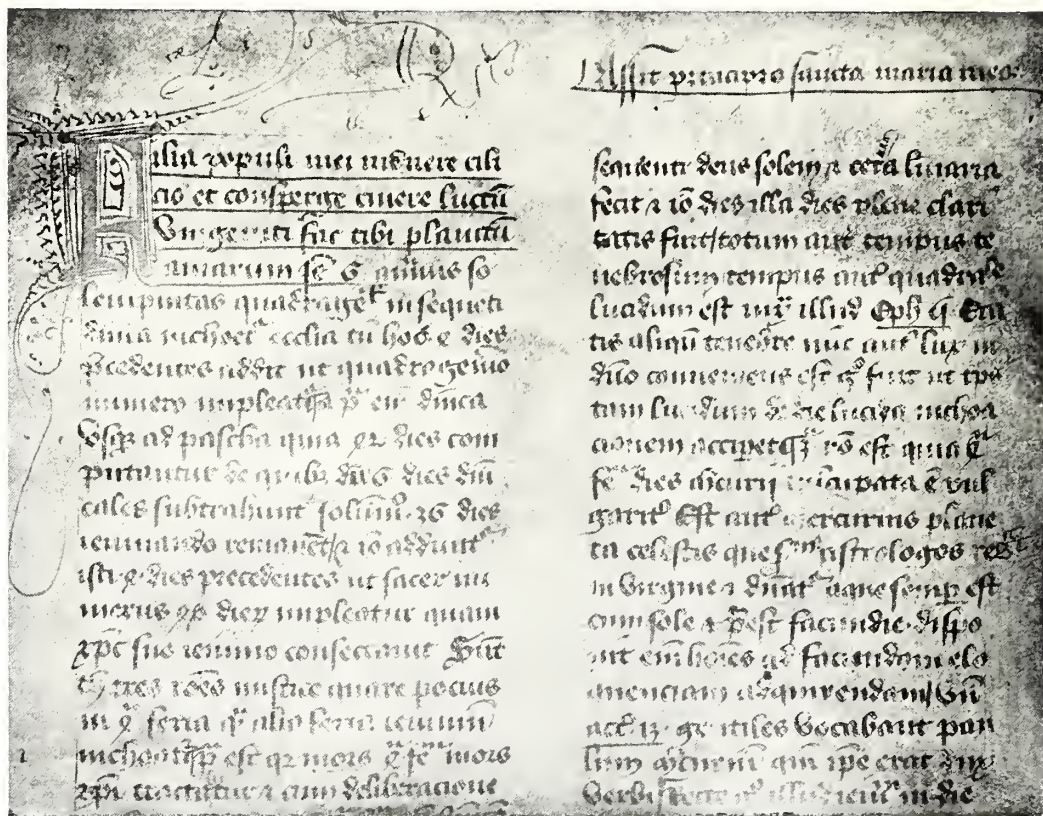

A leaf is lost between ff. 90-91: ff. 25-52 inclusive have their outer margins cut away close to the text, and the outer columns of fo. 101 are entirely gone.

There are numerous marginal notes.

6. COLLECTION OF MISCELLANEOUS TREATISES, written at the House of St. Mark, Bristol.

Vellum, 23 cms high X 16 cms, ff. 140, single column, 30 lines to a page. A.D. 1502.

In quires of 8 leaves, with catchwords. Some leaves lost (probably 4) between fo. 58 and fo. 59. Leaves missing at the end.

"HERE begynnȝth A profytable ynformacyon techyng a man to knowe the kynd of spyrytys Whych ben good and Whych not"	fo. 127 verso
A form of Confession, apparently designed for female penitents at the House (e.g., on fo. 135, "yf I see afayre man and shaply desyryng in my soule to haue had dalyaunce wyth hym in clypping in kyssyng and vncleue touchyng in slepyng or wakyng thorowe sweettenes or medytacyon in consenting in my wyll or soule to the foule synne of lechery")	fo. 134
"Thyes are the notalle rewles of the lyfe heremiticalle as they folow here after made be Pope celestyne which was an heremyte and chosyn for hys holynes out of wyldernes to be Pope and afterwarde left the papase and returnyd yn to wyldernes ayend"	fo. 137 verso
"Thes ben þ ^e vertues of þ ^e Rosemarye ful precyous"	fo. 140 verso

On fo. 119 is "Explicit expositio verborum difficilium tocus psalterij Deo graciās In domo Sancti Marci euangeliste iuxta Bristoliam. xxxi^o. die Mensis Octobris. Anno domini, 1502." This House or Hospital of St. Mark was, according to a charter in Dugdale's Monasticon Anglicanum (London, 1817-1830; vol. vi., p. 687), dedicated to Deo et beatæ Mariæ et beato Marco. In "fasting and other things to be observed" they followed "the custom of the friers of Lechlade; but in divine offices according to the custom and order of Sarum" (Wm. Barrett, Hist. and Antiq. of Bristol, Bristol, 1789; p. 362).

The expositions on the sequences of St. Thomas M., fo. 5 verso, and fo. 54 have been vigorously erased: and those for the Visitation, the Transfiguration and the Holy Name are ignored.

The ending of the form of confession, after concluding in English, is "Jdeo precor sanctam mariam omnes sanctos dei et vos orare pro me. Sit nomen domini benedictum. Sancte Marce ora pro nobis. Jhesus, Maria, Johannes."

There are numerous coloured ornamental capitals, but no pictures.

7. A LATIN DICTIONARY.

Vellum, 28 cms high x 18.5 cms across, ff. 180, in double columns, 46 lines to a column. Cent. xiiij.

In quires of 12 leaves; there are catchwords, but after fo. 96 the quires are numbered; a quire is lost between ff. 96-7 (96-109 of the original numbering by the scribe).

The dictionary is incomplete, ending with Spondeo, on fo. 178 verso. Fo. 179 (recto and verso) has a short and incomplete index, in three columns to the page.

On fo. 180, rather indistinct, is ‘flumine magna [. . .?],’ “Johannes permissione dni” (?) [the rest is erased and underneath the erasure is] “permissione Diuina Ab.”

Since binding fo. 182 (of the original numbering, between ff. 168-9) has been torn out.

There is one large and many small coloured capitals of each letter.

8. JOHN LYDGATE, History of Troy.

Vellum, size 40 cms high x 29.5 cms across, ff. 120: in double columns of 52 lines each. Cent. xv.

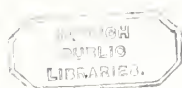

In quires of 8 with catchwords; the quire commencing fo. 9 has lost its last leaf: a leaf has been cut out between ff. 80-81, and ff. 103-104.

Fo. 1 commences

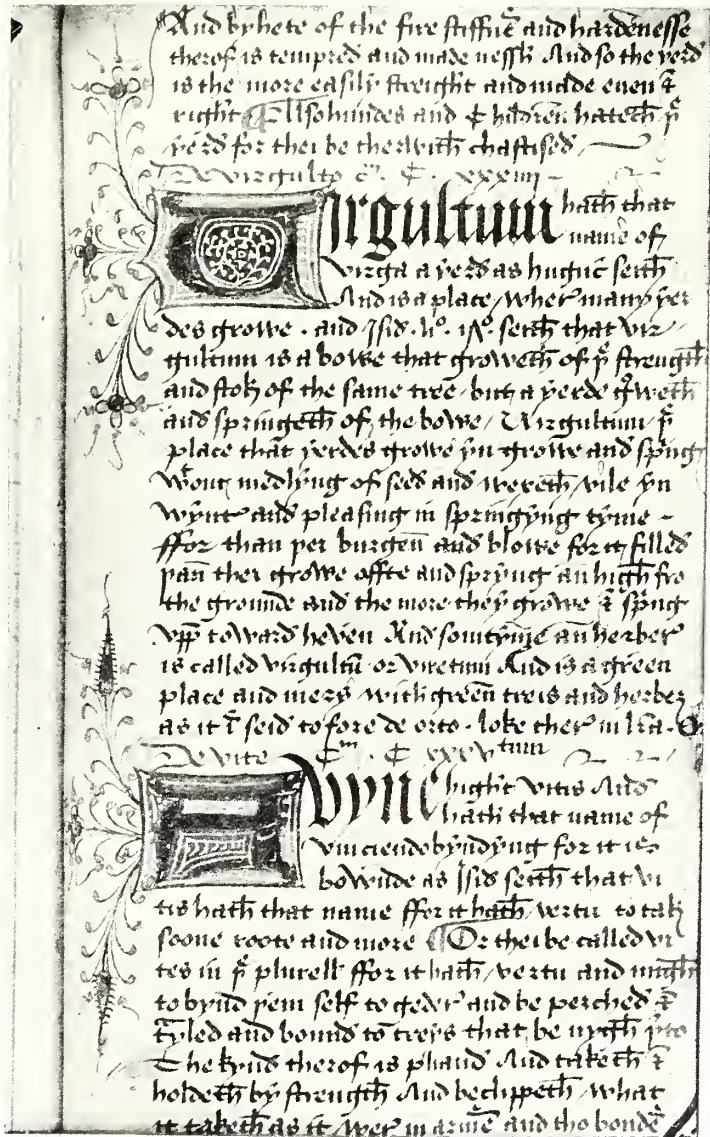

“How þat ther was a vial chef cite
Jn al þat regne moste of dignite” etc.

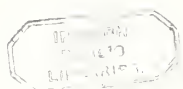

There are occasional illuminated initials.

On the margin of p. 53 in similar hand to that of the scribe is “Edmūde . . .”: the rest has been cut away. At the foot of fo. 118 verso is “(H) yt in the towne of Couetry in the charterhousse Housse ther remayneth euydence confermyng the inherytance off thomas vaulx lord haraddon Jrrather (?) corbett esquer off shroppshyre the land deuydyd the euydence nott.” At the foot of fo. 119 is “(H) yt in the monasterye off pipwell in the contye off northhampton remaynyth a chest of euydence conferyng the inherytance off s’ thomas grene knyght / which inherytance apud deyfoye (?) betwene the to doughters off the sayd s’ thomas grene the one off them maryed to s’ nyctoles Danby lat^e Lorde haro . . . 9. BARTHOLOMEW, the Englishman, De proprietatibus rerum; translated into English by John of Trevisa.

Vellum, size 40 cms high x 28 cms across, ff. 137: in double columns of 58 lines each. Cent. xv.

In quires of 8: many of which have lost one or more leaves.

The MS is much damaged and mutilated, many of the illuminated initials having been cut out.

At the head of fo. 116 verso is "To salamon my sone I leue my kyngdon wiche shall byld the temple of John Ierusalem the veri ground omⁱ my age and the stafe my": and at the head of the opposite folio is "To my most Harsie ffrynd mast' thom^as anderows dellinge in the medle temple in . . . geue theis wyth sped": there is some more in the margin which has been rendered hardly decipherable by the greater part having been cut away.

The later part of the work is not in the same hand as the earlier.

Glossary (latin-english)	fo. 282

There are some interesting miniatures in grey-brown ink, and some illustrations of various surgical instruments.

1. Two pictures side by side. Dexter: a man in a long gown, tippet and hood, and scull-cap, presents a scroll to the Duke of Bedford (?) behind whom are three persons and a dog. Sinister: the same man in same costume sitting at a lectern on which rests an open book (11.5 X 17.8). fo. 16
2. A demonstration in anatomy: demonstrator sits on chair sinister, pupil kneels on cushion dexter; skeleton lengthways across foot of picture (9.4 X 9) fo. 25
3. Surgeon kneeling on left knee on cushion dexter, operating on tumour in right groin of patient sitting on fourlegged stool sinister; latter also has tumour in right axilla: an empty box for instruments, etc., behind surgeon (9.3 X 7.5) fo. 41 verso
4. Surgeon kneeling dexter, binds patient standing sinister with narrow strapping; latter is nude except for short drawers, and marked all over with red lines to represent wounds: behind him a large pail in which is a broad bandage half unrolled; behind surgeon an empty box above, and below a four-legged stool on which several instruments are laid out (7.5 X 8.7). fo. 83
5. Surgeon kneeling on cushion dexter, dresses wounds of patient sitting on four-legged stool sinister: some wounds have been sutured: an empty box behind surgeon (8 X 8) fo. 123 verso
6. Surgeon kneeling dexter, bandages patient's leg set in splints: box, bason, etc., behind surgeon (8 X 8) fo. 149
7. Phlebotomy. Surgeon standing in centre, grasps right arm of patient with both hands: latter sits on four-legged stool sinister, grasping staff in right hand, and holding bason in left: box, stool with instruments, and bason behind surgeon (7.2 X 7) fo. 230 verso

On fo. 287 verso, partly cut away, is a long MS. note, from which the following is taken (begins l. 5).

“R̄ almonde & lye a clene paper leve on yt & wrytte Jhū [xp crossed through] fuit mitis (?) & saye Jn þ^e werssepp^e of x̄pt v pater nesters & v aues & a crede þ^e ij daye wrytt on a noder almonde lykwyssse Jhū fuit Mortuus est þ^e almonde þ^e iij tak anoder & wrytt Jhū [resserextus crossed out] resurectus When þ^e prayer es sade cast þ^e wrytynge Jn þ^e ferre holde renat (?) fro iij after Mednygt on to v of þ^e klok Jn þ^e Mornynge” etc., etc.

ERRATA.—No. 7 above should read No. 8.

7. Surgeon kneeling dexter behind four legged wooden stool on which stands a bason, prepares to treat right leg of patient suffering from enlarged joints sitting on cushion sinister with crutch under right arm: box and flagon behind.
